I do not understand your description of the fractional currency as none of the notes for 50 cents have the head of Garfield. He did not become President until 1881. A five dollar Bank note had his head but it has no premium. If it is a 50 cent note with his head I wish you would send it on as I would like to see it

Dear Sir:

Your note is worth only fifty cents. This is not a portrait of Garfield but a portrait of Stanton, Secretary of War during Lincoln's administration. The note has no premium and is worth just its face. For two reasons it is not rare and can be bought anywhere and also it is in poor shape being torn in the middle. I am herewith returning it.

Very truly yours,
